ALL-STAR PLAYERS PERFORM WELL WITH VEHICLE THAT IS MEDIOCRE

"The Rosary" Better Vehicle
For Acting Than Exemplar
of Play Builder's Craft

"The Rosary," the week-end offering at the Bijou, measures up better as a vehicle for acting than as an exemplar of the play-builder's craft. For two acts it runs smoothly with sustained interest and good dramatic situations; in the third it falters, and in the last act it becomes melodrama raised to the nth power. So sit the piece through gives one the idea that the author wrote the last act at one sitting on a bet, and that he developed a severe case of brainstorm when the task was about half completed.

"The Rosary" is widely heralded as having the endorsement of the Roman Catholic clergy and laity, and no wonder, for the whole plot revolves round the figure of Father Kelly, an excellently drawn character, by the way—the efficacy of whose prayers for the unknitting of a marital tangle is proved as the curtain falls, with the villain gibbering confessions at the feet of the priest, and husband and wife and several prospective brides and grooms happily reconciled.

A modicum of religion adds greatly to the tenacity of well written drama, but when it is hurled at the audience in 64-centimeter gun lots, it loses its effect. That is the case with "The Rosary."

Most of the characters are well drawn, and the All-Star Players of George Webb's company make the most of their parts. The acting is excellent and the character work high class, but the situations are entirely too obvious, and, as above stated, the finale tends to shatter the pleasing effects that the first two acts brought about.

Miss Florence Oakley's part is well suited to her, and, as usual, she handles it above criticism. George Webb is good as Bruce Wilton, the suspicious husband who keeps putting two and two together until the sum total points to the seventh commandment, and of course the error of his additions is shown in the last scene.

The major honors fall to Guy Hittner, as Father Kelly, the Irish priest, whose humaneness and sound Christianity endears him to the audience from the first. And Father Kelly of "The Rosary" really does represent a type of priest that the general public knows far too little of, more's the pity. In this one character at any rate the play carries a message.

The comedy relief is furnished by Miss Helen Carey as Lesura Watkins of Bellows Falls, who is a real hit, and Cliff Thompson, who takes the part of "Skeeters" in good style.

Last night there was an interminable delay between acts one and two, the curtain being down for 40 minutes, but this can be laid to an initial production and a more seasonable hour for the final curtain can be figured on for the rest of the run.

DANISH BALLET GIRLS
HARD HIT WHEN SHOES
CANNOT BE SECURED

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—Girls of the Royal Danish Ballet are placed in a serious dilemma. They cannot get ballet shoes from Paris. The ballet shoes manufactured here are so heavy that the girls cannot dance with them. If conditions do not improve, the ballet-master will be compelled to arrange ballets with naked foot-dancers.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It is said that every third person is troubled with catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh indicates a weakened condition of the body; that the secretions of the mucous membranes are quickly affected, and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors, do little if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood and improving your general condition with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal-food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or harmful drugs.

Scott's Emulsion is not a patent medicine but a concentrated medicinal-food, prescribed by the best physicians for forty years.

GERMANY'S FUND FOR AID INCREASES

[By Latest Mail]
NEW YORK.—Contributions for the German Red Cross received through the New York delegates of the Central Association of the German Red Cross Societies total $576,671, it was announced Tuesday by Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, official representative of the organization here.

"This amount," says Dr. Dernburg, "does not include very considerable sums sent through other channels or collected by other German societies." He thinks the total amount is at least twice that given above. Chicago has contributed $154,127, Baltimore $101, John Marcellino, F. B. Damon and George F. Fuller, appraisers of the estate of the late John Oudart, have filed their report in circuit court. It shows the estimated value of the property to be $18,377.50.

FOOTWEAR

For Gifts

You can hardly think of a more sensible and worth while present to relative, friend or employe than a pair of shoes chosen from the dependable lines we stock.

And instead of the actual shoes you can buy a Shoe Order for the amount you want to pay, present this order on Christmas and let the recipient choose the style desired.
